WM. MALONEY IS BURNED TO DEATH IN FIRE

FORMER GREENCASTLE AND INDIANAPOLIS MAN AND TWO OTHERS LOOSE LIVES IN CONFLAGRATION WHICH DESTROYS ABERDEEN, (MD.) BARRACK—WILL BE BURIED IN INDIANAPOLIS

FORMERLY IN BUSINESS HERE

BALTIMORE, Jan. 19.—Three men lost their lives and four others were seriously injured, one probably fatally, in a fire which destroyed barracks housing 100 employees at Edgewood arsenal near Aberdeen, Md., early yesterday morning. All of the victims were civilians.

J. H. Wilson of Maryland, K. M. Stradin of Tennessee and William Maloney of Indianapolis were burned to death and J. A. McCarey of New York was so badly burned that his death is expected.

The fire occurred about 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning, but the news did not become public here until today, and the cause of the blaze has not yet been determined.

The building, a frame structure, formerly used as officers quarters, was totally destroyed with an estimate loss of $50,000.

LEAVES LARGE FAMILY

Word that William Maloney of Indianapolis was one of the three men killed in a fire at Edgewood was received yesterday by the widow, who lives at 2528 Indianapolis avenue. Besides the widow, five children are left. Mr. Maloney had been head timekeeper at the Edgewood plant for two and one-half years. He had intended to return to Indianapolis before spring. Before going to work at Edgewood, Mr. Maloney was employed on construction work at Fort Benjamin Harrison here. The body will be returned to Indianapolis for burial. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.—Indianapolis Star.

William Maloney was a Greencastle man, having been born and reared here. For several years he was engaged with his father, Michael Maloney, in the saloon business in south Greencastle. Later he was engaged in the furniture business, being a partner of Jim Tucker in a business which occupied the room now occupied by Henry Werneke, jeweler. This business was sold to Charley Swope and Mr. Maloney removed to Indianapolis. He left Greencastle about twenty years ago but often visited here. The last visit here was at the time of the burial of his mother, about three months ago. William Maloney was a cousin of John Maloney of this city. A brother, John Maloney, lives in Crawfordsville.

COMMERCIAL CLUB ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

The members of the Commercial Club met in the club rooms Monday night for the election of officers for the ensuing year. C. C. Gillen was elected president, A. G. Brown, vice-president, and S. A. Hazlett, treasurer. The secretary was not elected as many of the members were of the opinion that an out-of-town man would be better adapted to fill the needs of the organization other than a man thoroughly familiar with the conditions existing, who would already have opinions fixed. A committee of three men was appointed to discuss the desirable and undesirable features of such a plan and report to the club on the first Monday night in February. The members of the committee are A. G. Brown, C. M. Mocett and H. E. Allen.

Ah, Those Were the Days

JACK BRYSON TO BE SECRETARY?

BRAZIL MAN AMONG THREE WHO ARE INCLUDED IN PROBABLE LIST OF THOSE WHO MAY BE APPOINTED BY THE GOVERNOR TO FILL VACANCY

AWAIT GOODRICH ACTION

INDIANA STATE CAPITOL, Jan. 19.—Discussion of the probable successor of W. A. Roach, secretary of state, who died Saturday, occupied much attention of State house officials and in various political camps about the city today.

Three men were mentioned: Ed Jackson of Lafayette, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor; John G. Bryson of Brazil, fifth district chairman, and Pliny H. Wolford, deputy secretary of state. The talk largely centered on whether Governor Goodrich would tender the post to Mr. Jackson and, in event he did, whether Mr. Jackson would accept it.

It was pointed out that Mr. Jackson resigned before his term as secretary of state expired, to enter the army, and many declare him to be the logical appointee.

Many political observers were of the belief, however, that the Governor would not attempt to disturb the gubernatorial race and among them an impression existed that Mr. Bryson might be given the place. It was recalled that Mr. Bryson was a strong contender for the office after Mr. Jackson resigned and that Governor Goodrich chose between him and Mr. Roach.

CURTIS MAY BY OUT OF PURDUE GAME SATURDAY

STAR DEPAUW CENTER IS SUFFERING SLIGHT INJURY WHICH MAY PREVENT HIM FROM PLAYING IN AN IMPORTANT GAME. MILLER READY TO STEP IN.

FEAR OF BLOOD POISONING

Curtis, the DePauw Tigers crack center, may be unable to play in the game against the Purdue five here Saturday night. The Tiger center is suffering a slight injury on his right knee and it is feared now that blood poisoning may develop.

However, if Curtis is unable to play, the Tigers will have "Skinny" Miller to jump in and take his place. Miller, although he has not played regularly with the five this year, is all set for the fray and the absence of Curtis will not weaken the quintet to any extent.

It is hoped, however, that the injury if Curtis will heal sufficiently by Saturday to allow him to get into the game. The game Saturday night is arousing great interest among the basketball enthusiasts and a great crowd will be out to root for DePauw.

PUBLIC SCHOOL SEMESTER WILL CLOSE FRIDAY

NEW CLASS WILL BE FORMED TO ACCOMMODATE NEW AND IRREGULAR PUPILS DURING THE LAST HALF OF YEAR

PRIMARY CLASS STARTS

The first semester of the public schools closes on next Friday, January 29. New classes are now being formed in both high school and the grades. Several half year courses are being offered in high school to accommodate the pupils who are now entering and the irregular students. Semester reports will be sent the parents on Monday, January 26.

New classes will be formed in the first grade in the ward buildings. Children who will be six years old by April the 1 may enter next Monday. It is suggested, however, that children coming within this class, who are physically weak, who live a great distance from the school building, or who do not seem mature for their ages, respectively, should defer entrance until the opening of the semester in September. The City Board of Health requires all children in the public school to be vaccinated. Parents will please send certificate of vaccination to school with the entering student.

On account of the mid-year promotion it will be necessary for a number of the students to purchase new books at this time. The supply list will be found at either of the book stores.

It is urged that parents examine the report cards carefully and to have a consultation with teachers in case the work is not satisfactory. Every high school student should prepare one or two lessons at home. If they do not make such preparation the result cannot be satisfactory.

They Could Sing

The teacher had noticed something queer about the rendering of a certain line of a hymn frequently used in morning school. One morning she determined to get to the bottom of the mystery. Listening intently, she traced the peculiarity to Johnny. "Sing it by yourself, Johnny," she commanded.

Johnny did so, and instead of the line "Weak and sinful though we be," he gave as his rendering, "We can sing full though we be."

His chubby appearance might be taken as evidence of the probability of his assertion.

True Enough

A teacher was questioning a class of boys on the subject of "birds." Having received correct answers to the questions about feathers, bill, feet and wings, he put the question, "What is it a bird can do that I am unable to do?"

"Fly," was the answer he hoped to get. For several moments the boys thought, but gave no answer. At last one held up his hand.

"Well, my boy, what is it?"

"Lay an egg."

ART COMBINES WITH COMMERCE

BRITISH MANUFACTURERS ENLIST ARTISTS' SERVICES TO MAKE THEIR PRODUCTS ATTRACTIVE

OLD TRADITION ABANDONED.

Real Artists Are Becoming More Practical In The Face Of The Financial Ravages Of H. C. L.

LONDON, England.—British manufacturers, especially those in the textile and metal-working industries, are said to be keenly appreciative of the necessity of better and more artistic designs for their goods and to be seeking the greater co-operation of artists. A movement is under way to bring art and commerce into closer relations, and it is reported that the response of museums and organizations of artists has been cordial.

If this is true—and there seems no reason whatever to question the accuracy of the report—it shows an altogether new spirit on the part of artists. Hitherto their traditional attitude toward commerce has been of aloofness. To call an artist "commercial" has been a mortal insult. Of course, artistry in modern industry is recognized commonplace, and there are thousands of "commercial artists" whose work is a mighty factor in business. But "artist" is a much inclusive word, and there is an implicit distinction between those who practice "art for art's sake" by painting pictures solely for the gratification of the eye and those who design picturesque advertising, ginghams, patterns, bottle labels, bedspreads, garment fabrics and new automobile bodies. In short, about Art with a capital A there is an implied sanctity, and there has been an unwritten law that it should not be profaned by too close contact with commerce. Those who employ their talent to boost or beautify the ordinary utilities of life are regarded by "artists" as on a lower plane, as no more than mere "craftsmen" at the best.

Art will brook no rivals and will tolerate the presence of no substitutes or near-limitations. When an artist is considered to have abandoned the divine torch by seeking a livelihood making pictures for magazines, he is no longer esteemed as an "artist," for it is held that he has become an "illustrator," and he is so designated. For his own delight he may still paint pictures that command approval, but his work as an illustrator, except in rare instances, is not recognized as real art.

If this distinction arises in the general work of illustration, there is a much more emphatic distinction in the case of about all lines of artistic endeavor that are strictly commercial. In fact, the word "commerce" is regarded by art with abhorrence, except as it may relate to the traffic in Rembrandts, Corots and such. It is matter of reproach for an artist to become "commercial" even in the sense of painting pictures "to sell"—that is, pictures that are deliberately calculated to appeal to the popular taste. In the aristocracy of Art it seems to be assumed that the highest expression of art is that which very few people like. An artist who persistently paints pictures that nobody wants is likely to be regarded by his fellows with great admiration as a follower of High Ideals. And yet it is a strange fact that the greatest artists of all ages have been those whose ideals seem to have coincided to a remarkable degree with the tastes of the crowd.

Of course, "commercial artists" are and will continue to be co-operating with commerce to the full extent of their ability. It would not seem necessary to stimulate their ambition in any way. Obviously, this British movement for a closer union between Art and Commerce has to do with artists—those whom for the sake of distinction we may call "real artists." In view of their reported enthusiasm over the project perhaps it may be concluded that artists are becoming more practical. The H. C. L. has been sweepingly educative, and the C. of H. L. has also sharpened the appreciation of practical considerations. Even artists like to drive their own motor-cars, and a steady job as designer for a manufacturer may supply the gasoline rather more reliably than picture-painting for an uncertain public.

Still, it is to be hoped that artists will not turn to this new co-operation with commerce with too much zest and in too great numbers. The world will continue to want pictures. The movement affords a needed opportunity for a weeding-out process in the fields of art. Many a good sign-painter has been lost to the world because of the curious determination to pursue Art at all hazards. If the bars are let down by this new enlightenment society is bound to gain many capable sign-painters and gingham designers.

That is one attractive feature—really the only one reported—about the Russian Soviet Government. It is a process of restraint and elimination. As the conditions have been reported, there is a Commissary of Popular Enlightenment in Russia, one of the branches of which is the Bureau of the Prolet-Kul, which controls art and education. As we understand the principle of the system, artists are compelled by the Bolsheviks to prove that they are artists. If they succeed they are duly licensed by the Government, but otherwise they are forced into some other line of activity. If they are good enough they may become sign-painters, but when a man shows up too poorly under the test he may find himself a blacksmith's helper or almost anything.

MINER'S DREAM OF GIRL SAVES HIM FROM DEATH

Says Visionary Figure Warned Him of Dangers and Told Him Her Name and Address

Syracuse, N. Y.—How dreaming about a girl he had never seen saved the life of a mining engineer in Alaska, the facts of the case are known here and are believed to the very last detail. The girl in the case is Miss Ethel Williams of this city. The engineer is Donald Mack, of Juneau, Alaska.

Miss Williams, who lives with her father and sister, recently received a postcard on which was the picture of a dog team and the following message penned in a masculine hand:

"If you will write to this address I will tell you why I have sent this card."

She did. He did.

Miss Williams received the following story from the man in the North: "I am a mining engineer. Ordinarily I finish my work and reach the settlements before the lakes and rivers close and am able to make this trip by boat and canoe. Last fall I delayed too long, and was obliged to come out by sled, a distance of 700 miles.

"Shortly before I reached Lake Tagash I fell in with three Indians and a Frenchman on the trail. We started to cross the lake, stopping midway on a small island, to rest and sleep. While I slept, I dreamed. I saw a young girl dressed in light summer clothing standing in the deep snow around me. It was so real to me that I asked her who she was and why she was there. She told me her name was Ethel Williams and her home in Syracuse, N. Y. She said she knew it was my intention to keep on the direct route over the lake, but that disaster lay in that direction, as there was open water covered by drifting snow. To be safe I should go about twenty five miles up the river, where I would find a safe crossing.

"At this point I was awakened by the howling of dogs and the shouts of Indians. It was 3 o'clock in the morning. They were making ready to go. I told them of my dream and they laughed at me. I followed the instructions of the dream girl and when I reached Juneau the Indians and Frenchman had not been seen. I headed a searching party down the lake to the point where they would have reached the mainland. We found the canoes and their sleeping bags and other camp outfit floating in the open water.

"So, Miss Williams, I consider that you have saved my life, and mailed the card to you from Juneau."

SMITTEN BY SMILING WOMAN

Having Imbibed Freely, He Hugged Wife by Mistake, Got Swift Punch

Winnepeg, Manitoba—"The promise in a woman's smile—Oh! Who can explain!" runs the chorus of a popular song hit of a year ago.

Today Sam Baka, 209 Euclid avenue is asking the same question. And, while asking it he writes in his ledger of life, "To experience, $5.35."

Sam harkened to the call of a woman's smile. He was fined $3 and costs amounting to $2.35, in the police court as the result.

There was a wedding celebration at Sam's house that night. Comely women attended. Sam's daughter was about to marry a Ruthenian swain.

Wine flowed freely, and Sam imbibed. Toward midnight the feeling that Shakespeare described as coming from thoughts of spring crept over him.

Then—a comely maiden smiled at him. Sam was only human. He smiled back.

He forgot his wife altogether with the second smile. Although he did not know it, his wife, Mary, watched his every movement. At that time she was following "the girl who smiled" out of the room. And Mary followed him.

All was dark in the hall. Sam couldn't see where his new acquaintance went.

Her form however was outlined in silhouette. Sam did not observe his wife following him when he left the room and the natural conclusion he jumped to was that the woman who came on the veranda after him was his "lady of the smile."

He advanced toward her. The woman smiled. It was enough for Sam. He tried to bestow an endearing embrace.

Instead of a response to his endearments, he was struck on the face with a fist. He had tried to hug his wife.

The melee that followed brought both belligerents out on the sidewalk where they were later separated by a patrolman. Sam was arrested on a charge of drunkenness.

Honest Dog Gets Reward

New Rochelle, N. Y.—Bill, a bull terrier, 4 months old, owned by Miss Louretta Cody, daughter of Police Lieutenant Frank Cody of New Rochelle, is developing into a valuable dog. Last week he began to bring home old shoes and cans from rubbish heaps. Saturday he brought a bag of rolls and yesterday he came home spattered with milk, having tried to bring a bottle of milk and spilled it.

Since then Bill carried home a lady's hand bag containing $12.80, some visiting cards and an automobile veil. The cards were those of Mrs. Steephon W. Huntington, wife of the vice president of the city council of New Rochelle. When the property was returned to her Mrs. Huntington said she had dropped it out of her automobile on Drake avenue. She bought Bill a new collar as a reward for his honesty.

YELLOW MUSTARD FOR SORE THROAT, TONSILITIS

Old fashioned remedies are often the best. Yellow Mustard, in the form of plaster or pautice, has been used for generations for soreness, inflammation, congestions and swellings with most excellent results but—it blistered.

Heat eases pain and Begg's Mustard made of pure yellow mustard, together with other pain relieving ingredients is just as hot, but quicker, cleaner and more effective and cannot blister.

When your throat is sore, when you have pleurisy, bronchitis or a pain-shooting chest cold you can get speedy and lasting relief with this most effective preparation because heat eases pain. Every druggist has it—30 and 60 cents.

He Was Run Down.

The big red touring car struck a pedestrian, rolling him in the mud and maltreating him in general. The owner ran back, greatly excited, after stopping his car.

"Is he dead?" he asked anxiously of the medical man who was attending the victim.

"Oh, no!" replied the doctor cheerfully. "He's not dead; he's merely run down."

AT THE THEATRE.

Husband—Didn't you bring along your opera-glass?
Wife—Yes, but I can't use it.
Husband—Why not?
Wife—I forgot my bracelets.

Cottage Fashioned by Most Skilled Architect Saves Steps for Brides and Others

Washington—Uncle Sam and Dan Cupid signed articles of incorporation as the Love in a Cottage and First Aid to Cupid Company, unlimited. Thru their chief architect at the department of Agriculture, Sam & Cupid today announce the invention of "a perfect love of vine clad cottage economically and sweetly made."

And any bride may receive a complete copy of the "Dove Cote" plans by writing to Sam and Cupid, care department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

First of all, this charming little ducky of a house is so ingeniously arranged that it will save the bride 182,500 steps a year. There are besides the wonderful patent kitchen, a dining room, living room and two bed rooms, a front porch and a large sleeping porch.

And if you don't happen to be a bride you may have a copy of the plans just the same, by asking for them.

Everything has been figured out. With the arrangements made by the architect, the housewife can go into the kitchen in the morning and need come out only for meals, if that is the way she feels about it.

The poison gas menace from cooking cabbage, the heat prostration danger from overheated stoves, that tired feeling that results from too many steps between the kitchen and the dining room all have been attended to.

The house has for primary features a cool, convenient kitchen and dining room; bedrooms and living rooms with the best exposure facilities for outdoor sleeping, and an easily heated house, cool in summer and sunny in winter.

The kitchen's principle feature is the cooking room, just large enough to accommodate a stove. When the door of the room is locked, the cabbage may boil or the ham may burn up and no odor will penetrate to the kitchen proper. The housewife need not stay in the room with the stove; in fact, she couldn't get in if she wanted to.

Windows are so arranged that there is always a breeze through the kitchen. The front porch is arranged so it can't exclude any sunlight. The sleeping porch is germ proof and airy. The kitchen and dining room are so convenient that it is unnecessary to carry dishes between them—they can be pushed right through the wall. The china closet has doors in both rooms and dishes are laid in at one door and taken out of another in the next room.

In addition to the front and sleeping porches there is a screened porch reached from the kitchen. A feature disclosed by an examination of the screened porch, by the way, is a fuel room. Fuel is poured into it from the back yard—it may be dumped right from a wagon into the room—and, like the trick china closet, permits being emptied from another entrance in the kitchen.

There are seven closets in the house, which is only one story. The nearest approach to a second story is where a window has been inserted. The window gives exit to the smoke and smell from the cooking room, with which it and an inside chimney connect.

"BRIDE" IS MAN IN DISGUISE

Wealthy Farmer, 70, Tricked by Band of Jokers

Lima, Ohio—Julian Eitings, "popular leading lady," need not feel he has a patent on affecting feminine roles for Lawrence Miller, a man, of this city, actually wedded John Marshall 70, a well to do farmer residing near Unipolis.

For several months Miller in feminine wig and clothes, "wood" the aged farmer and was accepted, on a promise of $8,000 dowry, Miller says.

A mock wedding ceremony was staged, with fifty guests, before a pseudo justice of the peace. Not until the couple had been pronounced man and "wife" did Marshall discover that the object of his affection was of masculine gender, for it was then that Miller removed the wig.

The bridegroom remained in bed all next day.

Couldn't Get His Bees

Birmingham, Ala.—Becoming involved in a dispute over a trivial matter, two citizens of Montgomery county struck a snag in the law when a swarm of bees owned by one migrated to the home of the other. This renewed the trouble, and W. C. Frimie, bailiff of the city court was summoned to.

"I want my bees," said the original owner: "they have gone to that fellow's home."

Frizzle began an investigation to ascertain whether he had authority to return the bees to the rightful owner. After consulting many law books this was his conclusion, as expressed in his own words:

"I find that before you can obtain your bees you must have them arrested in the regular way. And before they can be arrested you must swear out an individual warrant against every bee in the swarm. I also find that before you can swear out an individual warrant against every bee you must know the name of each one."

The rightful owner said he was willing to give his neighbor a warranty deed to one swarm of bees, but he did not know the name of each one in the swarm. So the bees are still in their new home.

ROUMANIA RECEIVES AMERICAN TRACTORS AND AUTOMOBILES

Work-Animals Destroyed; Welcome American Machines to Aid Reconstruction.

According to a recent report from the American Trade Agent at Bucharest, Roumania, received by the Ford Motor Company's foreign department, New York City, a consignment of 200 Ford motor cars and 180 Fordson tractors was amongst "the first since the end of the war, and may be considered as one of the most important" because of the part they will play in the reconstruction of battle-scarred, hungry Roumania.

Speaking of the arrival of the tractors, the report said: "The 'Fordson' tractor, though completely unknown in Roumania, obtained a very large success at its first demonstrations which were followed with the greatest interest by a large number of farmers, on account of its remarkable qualities and if the services it can do in this country where the work-animals have been destroyed by the enemy invasion during the war.

More than three-quarters of the stock arrived has already been sold and is employed over the country to the delight of the Roumanian farmers who are seeing 'hera' a great future for the autotractors.

Reporting on the sale of the motor cars, the trade agent says: "The 'Ford' automobiles were sold immediately on their arrival and the Noel company is waiting very anxiously a second consignment of 120 machines which have been ordered at the 'Ford' manufactory and which, for the greatest part, are already reserved by their customers."

Shipments of agricultural machinery from Oliver Chilled Plow Works, American Seeding Machine Company, and the Roderick Lead Manufacturing Company to be used in connection with the Fordson tractor have also been received in Bucharest.

A Natural Mistake

"You have a pretty tough-looking lot of customers to dispose of this morning haven't you?" remarked the friend of a magistrate, who had dropped in at the police court.

Beauty of Oklahoma.

Oklahoma is beautiful, with a beauty all its own. Here and there, in fissures between the swells, brooks run, red like wounds, or clear and gypsy. Above them cottonwoods blend.

But, for the most part, says Harper's Bazaar, the land curves, trembling, to a treeless horizon. The plains are never still. They move as constantly as rippling water.

In the unbroken country shine oaks, mingled with buffalo grass, shades and rusties under the thousand handed urgency of the wind. Shine oaks are baby oak trees, as high as your shin, burned off every year by the prairie fires, and thus never attaining full growth. Their leaves dance gossamer all the time, playing with the sunshine or the shadows.

It is a hurrying sky, a restless sky, piling its clouds in strange masses; spitting out rainstorms; thundering in the west; shot with lightning; hazed by dust storms; vast—unbelievably vast! Every one watches it, as sailors watch at sea; for every now and then its endless changes pile up the dreaded cyclone funnel, and no one, on pain of his life, must miss that warning.

Shinney and grass are not thick with the most beautiful wild flowers. The sensitive rose, its stem guarded by fine little prickles to prevent handling, shrinks at a blow, but if left undisturbed, creeps along the ground and holds out lilac colored soft balls full of rosy fragrance. Like a permanent morning glory is the bloom of the sturdy man-in-the-ground, a small plant with a big root almost like a man's body. Some of the people call it deadman.

Dearest of all to the Oklahoma woman the pink daisy snake root grows a frequent and friendly head. Through the hard days now passing many a family escaped starvation because of the presence of this valuable herb. Women and children dug it all through the long blowing days, selling the roots for 50 cents a pound to wholesale pharmacies.

Snake root is said to contain the most powerful known antidote to various poisons and to be especially noticeable in that, unlike most antidotes, it is not a poison in itself. The supply is continually insufficient for the demand, and as nobody is cultivating the plant the discrepancy is likely to grow greater.

Obeyed Specialist's Orders.
A celebrated Continental specialist, to whom time was literally money, and who was possessed of a fiery temper, made it a rule that all patients should undress before entering his consulting room so as not to waste any of his valuable time. One day a meek looking little man entered with all his clothes on.

"What do you mean by coming in like that?" asked the doctor, in a rage. "Go and strip at once."
"But I—" faltered the man.
"I tell you I've no time to waste," yelled the doctor, and the poor man left the room in haste. When his turn came he re-entered the room. "Now, then," said the doctor, "that's better. What can I do for you?"
"I called to collect your subscription for the benevolent society,"—The Tatler.

The Way of Mothers

Mrs. Gordon had recently moved into the neighborhood.
"I thought I would come and tell you that your James has been fighting with my Edward," said one of the neighbors one morning as she called at Mrs. Gordon's door, "and settle the matter if I could."

"Well, for my part," responded Mrs. Gordon laughingly, "I have no time to enter into any discussion about the children's quarrels. I consider myself above such trifling things."
"I'm delighted to hear it," was the reply. "I'll send James over on a stretcher in an hour or two."—Life.

Could He Do It?

At an Eastern military academy the night guard heard a noise. "What? Who goes there?" he called, in accordance with army regulations. It was another student bent on midnight frolic, and he answered "Moose." The frivolous and utter disregard of military rule brought back the command, the guard probably suspecting the other's identity. "Advance, Moose, and give the ten commandments."

Didn't Sleep With Them

A gentleman who had called to see Mr. V., found his little son, Frank, in the library rubbing his eyes and yawning.
"Sleepy?" he inquired.
"Um," grunted Frank.
"I suppose you usually go to bed with the chickens," smiled the visitor.
"No, I don't," snapped Frank. "I have a little bed in my room all to myself."

BERRY PRODUCTS

Strawberry Waste Tremendous—Suggestions for Handling Surplus Through Cannery and Cold Storage.

Each year thousands of bushels of strawberries go to waste in the larger producing centers of the United States because of low prices or some adverse condition. In many regions of the south 20 to 25 per cent of the crop is never gathered, because the prices toward the end of the season are too low to justify picking the fruit. This is a great loss that should be avoided, with the increasing demands for strawberry products, such as crushed fruit, jellies, preserves, and marmalades, this loss can be largely reduced, according to a new publication of the department of agriculture (F. B. 664).

Within the last few years some of the manufacturers of food products have been putting up fresh strawberries in large quantities for use at soda fountains and in the manufacture of ice cream. This industry offers important possibilities to the producer, manufacturer, and consumer. Several large manufacturers buy surplus strawberries and put them up in the field, while others ship the fruit to their home factory. One of the best methods of handling the fruit is as follows: Wash the berries thoroughly in cold water, put them into tight barrels with sugar in about equal weights, load in refrigerator cars and ship to cold-storage plant where they can be held until needed. Sometimes the berries are crushed before being put into the barrels, but in most cases they are packed as nearly whole as possible. When ready for use they are taken from storage and manufactured into the various products. If the fruit is in good condition at the time it is placed in cold storage, it can be kept for a long time without to any great extent losing its flavor and fresh color.

The keeping of strawberries under refrigeration is a comparatively new undertaking, but results that have been secured indicate that in time this can be made an important industry. It is possible to keep the fruit in such a way that its quality is practically unimpaired. In a single storage house 6,000 barrels of crushed sugared strawberries were held at a temperature between 36 degrees and 40 degrees F. Proper storage is an important matter, for it will enable the grower to dispose of his surplus crop and at the same time will provide the consumer with a wholesome strawberry product throughout the year. When growers are banded together into a large association it often should be possible for them to manufacture strawberry by-products at the producing center under the management of the organization.

Milk for Chickens.

The Storrs experiment station, Storrs, Conn., in Bulletin 80 gives the following conclusions from milk-feeding tests:

The feeding of milk to young chicks has a most favorable influence on the growth and on the lessening of mortality of the chicks. It tends to prevent mortality from all causes, and if fed soon enough and for a sufficiently long period, greatly reduces the death-rate caused by bacillary white diarrhoea.

Sweet and sour milk are apparently of equal value in their relation to growth and mortality. Furthermore, different degrees of souring do not alter the results of milk feeding.

The value of milk as a food for chicks does not depend upon any acids that may be present, nor upon any particular types of micro-organisms; but upon one or more of the natural constituents of the milk.

When milk is supplied freely to chicks, it becomes all the more important that they have abundant exercise. This applies more particularly to early-hatched chicks that are brooded wholly or for the most part in doors.

The feeding of sweet or sour milk to young chicks has in no instance been found to be in any way injurious to the chicks employed in our numerous experiments. If the milk is clean, and not too old, none but the most favorable results should accompany its use as a food for chicks. There is no preference in the choice of sweet or of sour milk, except from the standpoint of convenience. The use of the one or the other should be determined by the circumstances. However, it seems very desirable that the same kind of milk be supplied throughout the milk-feeding period. If the choice is that of sour milk, sour milk should be fed to the end.

Simple Plow Shoe.

To move a plow without having the point digging in the ground as you drive along, procure an old shoe or the foot of an old leather boot, cut it off crosswise to remove the back part and the heel, then slip the toe end of the shoe over the plow point and drive where you want to. It effectively muzzles the plow.

Owing to the high price of poultry and shortage of other farm crops more people obtained their money for Christmas presents this year from the poultry yard than ever before.

To neglect a flock of birds is decidedly a money losing proposition.
